

Socratic Phrases

Matthew Giroux

License : Creative Common by SA

<https://archive.org/download/EWrite>

From Henry Charles Carey

Our society only links elements together.

So we link in our mind to improve our society.

According to our history...

We are social and creative individuals.

Just as life organizes material, we organize,
our sociability allows to understand our individuality and our creativity.

According to classicism...

Some music called scholarly music makes you think in order to act and meditate.

There is thus classical music or certain religious, moral, traditional, demanding songs.

According to Socrates...

Our truth's research makes us smart and happy.

According to realism...

Beauty is not linked to aesthetics.

It's a notion of eternity.

But aesthetics can lead to reflection on our future.

According to classicism...

Repetition prevents reflection.

Beautiful dissonances engages reflection.

From Henry Charles Carey

The value is due to the resistance to getting something. The less work there is, the more valuable it becomes.

From Henry Charles Carey

Being rich is knowing how to use what we have.

The more we can link in society, the richer we are.

From Henry Charles Carey

The more numerous we are, the more the labor economy allows everyone to have what they need, through our industries.

From Henry Charles Carey

Industries need skilled jobs. Industries make the school living.

Plato

Plato defined scientific reflection and dialogue, making it possible to excel our society.

The secularism of religions

Life is the ability that universe organizes itself.
This is the material and light's secret.

The secularism of religions

We don't know why the universe is organizing.
Therefore, the why will very often guide our truth's research.

According to artists

As soon as we know to build something, we can become an architect to criticize our society improving it.

According to Plato

Citizens are society's architects, being able to become researchers with Plato.

According to Plato

If we don't fully understand something, it's because an information is missing.

Then we define in order to engage our truth's research.

According to journalists

To know how to discover society is to be a journalist, in order to get to the source and the real causes, axioms of our sciences.

According to Leibnitz

Improving society is adding a new cause to it, which may perhaps become an axiom. This axiom can become eternal.

According to artists

Playing music makes it easy to transform our mind, in order to better link.

According to public writers

When we listen, we remember little. When we read, we remember half of that we read.

When we write, we remember practically everything if we build.

So we're growing.

According to civilization

After writing, having a dialogue makes it possible to determine what we are thinking.

According to Confucius

We grow the most having a scientific dialogue with people who are different from ourselves.

Children are scientists from their first learning, because they test and elaborate to walk and talk.

According to Confucius and Plato

Wanting evil is due to a lack of information about ourselves or society.

According to Plato

Thinking scientifically is to hypothesize with our dialogues.

We will then find an induced hypothesis that encompasses our hypotheses.

This is the higher hypothesis.

Our Humanity

Creativity is our humanity.

No animal can be as creative as we are.